Dear friends,

Welcome to St Peters this morning. We will be hearing from God's Word, singing praises to God, and praying. If you are new or visiting, please stay for morning tea if you are able.

Christmas is coming, there are opportunities to be part of outreach at this time. You could be part of the singing group for the Carols in the grounds or help out with the All-age service on 9th December or the Children's Service on Christmas Eve. There will also be flyers and tracts to give out around the neighbourhood from early December. If you want to be involved, speak to Wes or Cathy or to Neil.

Don't forget, for those involved in children's ministry and other roles there is training in Church Safe. The last opportunity this year for training is next Saturday afternoon at the Anglican Church in Bassendean, this can be booked through the Diocesan Website. It is a requirement for you to go to training.

Finally, thanks to Jim and others who covered whilst Anthea and I had a week's break with family.

May the Lord bless and keep you,

Neil

From Jim Crawley:

Some of you will be familiar with the writings of Eugene Peterson – his translation of the Bible, The Message, which tries to express the meaning of scripture in modern colloquial language, and his many other books on prayer and the Christian life.

Sadly, Eugene Peterson died last Monday at the age of 85. His family issued a statement, which is in itself a moving testimony:

“During the previous days, it was apparent that he was navigating the thin and sacred space between earth and heaven. We overheard him speaking to people we can only presume were welcoming him into paradise. There may have even been a time or two when he accessed his Pentecostal roots and spoke in tongues as well. Among his final words were, ‘Let’s go.’ And his joy: my, oh my; the man remained joyful right up to his blessed end, smiling frequently. In such moments it’s best for all mortal flesh to keep silence. But if you have to say something say this: ‘Holy, Holy, Holy.’”
